

Many student facilities at USC are becoming overcrowded. This leads to inconsistent food wait times and inability to complete necessities like physical activity and getting academic help.